This witness can produce the January 13, 1953 issue of the Boston Traveler, a newspaper published in Boston, Massachusetts, which contains an article by political writer CORNELIUS DALBY entitled, "Nature of Red Plot eludes Petition-Signers." This article is quoted in part as follows:

"The real nature of the Communist conspiracy seems to have eluded non-Communist signers of petitions urging clemency for JULIUS and ETHEL ROSENBERG and amnesty for the 11 top Red leaders.

"The ROSENBERGS, a husband and wife spy team, were sentenced to death for transmitting atom bomb secrets to Russia. The Communist leaders were imprisoned for advocating the violent overthrow of the government.

"The ROSENBERG case is currently the principal propaganda promotion of the Communist party. The drive to free the party leaders has been a continuing activity since they were jailed 18 months ago.

"It is significant that the Communist party ignored the ROSENBERGS during their trial and for nine months after their conviction. (The Daily Worker printed nothing during that period except a three sentence story on the verdict.) It also is significant that the organized propaganda campaign started when the Communists decided to exploit the case for their own purposes.

"The Communists have been notably successful in enlisting the aid of clergymen in support of the ROSENBERGS and the imprisoned party leaders."

This witness can produce the January 22, 1953 issue of the Boston Traveler, a newspaper published in Boston, Massachusetts, which contained an article on page one captioned, "Right-Led' Units Target of Party" by political writer CORNELIUS DALTON, which read in part as follows:

"The ROSENBERG clemency campaign has been promoted on a world-wide basis by the Communists, with protest meetings staged in various countries.

"The 'united front' tactic has been used effectively to gain non-Communist support.

"Locally, the campaign has been led by the Boston Committee to secure Clemency in the ROSENBERG Case, with headquarters at 93 Massachusetts Avenue."

This witness can produce the January 13, 1953 issue of the Boston Traveler, a newspaper published in Boston, Massachusetts, which contains an article by political writer CORNELIUS DALTON entitled, "Nature of Red Plot Kludges Petition-Signers." This article is quoted in part as follows:

"The real nature of the Communist conspiracy seems to have eluded non-Communist signers of petitions urging clemency for JULIUS and ETHEL ROSENBERG and amnesty for the 11 top Red leaders.

"The ROSENBERGS, a husband and wife spy team, were sentenced to death for transmitting atom bomb secrets to Russia. The Communist leaders were imprisoned for advocating the violent overthrow of the government.

"The ROSENBERG case is currently the principal propaganda promotion of the Communist party. The drive to free the party leaders has been a continuing activity since they were jailed 18 months ago.

"It is significant that the Communist party ignored the ROSENBERGS during their trial and for nine months after their conviction. (The Daily Worker printed nothing during that period except a three sentence story on the verdict.) It also is significant that the organized propaganda campaign started when the Communists decided to exploit the case for their own purposes.

"The Communists have been notably successful in enlisting the aid of clergymen in support of the ROSENBERGS and the imprisoned party leaders."

This witness can produce the January 22, 1953 issue of the Boston Traveler, a newspaper published in Boston, Massachusetts, which contained an article on page one captioned, "Right-Led' Units Target of Party" by political writer CORNELIUS DALTON, which read in part as follows:

"The ROSENBERG clemency campaign has been promoted on a world-wide basis by the Communists, with protest meetings staged in various countries.

"The 'united front' tactic has been used effectively to gain non-Communist support.

"Locally, the campaign has been led by the Boston Committee to secure Clemency in the ROSENBERG Case, with headquarters at 93 Massachusetts Avenue."

"The real nature of the Communist conspiracy seems to have eluded non-Communist signers of petitions urging clemency for JULIUS and ETHEL ROSENBERG and amnesty for the 11 top Red leaders.

"The ROSENBERGS, a husband and wife spy team, were sentenced to death for transmitting atom bomb secrets to Russia. The Communist leaders were imprisoned for advocating the violent overthrow of the government.

"The ROSENBERG case is currently the principal propaganda promotion of the Communist party. The drive to free the party leaders has been a continuing activity since they were jailed 18 months ago.

"It is significant that the Communist party ignored the ROSENBERGS during their trial and for nine months after their conviction. (The Daily Worker printed nothing during that period except a three sentence story on the verdict.) It also is significant that the organized propaganda campaign started when the Communists decided to exploit the case for their own purposes.

"The Communists have been notably successful in enlisting the aid of clergymen in support of the ROSENBERGS and the imprisoned party leaders."

This witness can produce the January 22, 1953 issue of the Boston Traveler, a newspaper published in Boston, Massachusetts, which contained an article on page one captioned, "Right-Led' Units Target of Party" by political writer CORNELIUS DALTON, which read in part as follows:

"The 'united front' tactic has been used effectively to gain non-Communist support.

"Locally, the campaign has been led by the Boston Committee to secure Clemency in the ROSENBERG Case, with headquarters at 93 Massachusetts Avenue."

The informant stated that this meeting was called to discuss arrangements for a mass meeting to be sponsored by the committee which was to be held on 11/6/52, at Odd Fellows Hall, 9th and "T" Street, N.W. The informant pointed out that this meeting was to be advertised by mailing certain committee literature to ministers, certain committee literature to trade unions, and certain committee literature to miscellaneous persons. Among the items to be distributed in these mailings are a form of a newspaper bearing the bold headlines "Rosenbergs Must Not Die," which indicated that the newspaper is issued by the Committee to Secure Justice in the Rosenberg Case, 1050 Sixth Avenue, New York 16, New York. Also to be distributed was a postal card addressed to President TRUMAN in which the signer urged that the lives of the ROSENBERGS be saved.

A discussion was had concerning the proposed picket line to be held at the White House in an effort to cause the President to take some action in favor of the ROSENBERGS. The National Office in New York, desired that this vigil should commence on 12/24/52, and to continue until such action was taken by the President or until the ROSENBERGS were executed. The vigil was planned to continue twenty-four hours per day. It was not the desire of the National Office to have a large number of people in the picket line, but it was their desire that at least twenty persons be in the line at all times. It was announced at this meeting that individuals would come from everywhere to take part in the picket line. Some of the Washington members agreed with the National Office that the picket line should begin on Christmas Eve, while others disagreed and felt that it should not be started until after Christmas. An effort was to be made to obtain office space in Washington for the committee, and a hotel suite was preferred. This office space was to be obtained by 12/15/52, and the expenses were no object. At least one individual was to be present in the office twenty-four hours a day, and it was decided that MARTHA WALKIN would be there each day and she would be relieved by other committee members who would volunteer their time.

At this meeting WILLIAM REUBEN spoke on the Rosenberg Case. He said that in September, 1949, President TRUMAN announced that Soviet Russia had exploded an A-Bomb, and immediately following that statement everyone started clamoring that there were spies in the United States and that they should be detected. "Confessions" were first attained from FUG'S and HARRY GOLD, and the American public clamored for more.

WFO 100-1474

The next developments are not too clear; however, a man by the name of EDWIN GREENGLASS was arrested by the FBI and grilled for twelve hours during which time he "confessed" and implicated his brother-in-law, JULIUS ROSENBERG, as heading an immense superconspiracy espionage ring here in the United States. At the conclusion of the twelve-hour questioning period, during which time GREENGLASS was held without charge, the FBI suggested that he obtain a lawyer. To show how ridiculous it was, REUBEN said that GREENGLASS had attended only one year of high school. During that year he took eight subjects and failed all. REUBEN said that in 1949, while GREENGLASS was on furlough from Los Alamos, GREENGLASS reportedly drew diagrams for JULIUS ROSENBERG entirely from memory, as well as twelve pages of technical information, including complicated and involved formulas. This, according to REUBEN, was from a person who had had only one year of high school, which he failed.

ARTHUR STEIN, as chairman of this meeting, took the floor after REUBEN's talk and read the Amicus Brief which called for a new and fair retrial. MLEANOR BELSER moved for its adoption by the Washington Progressive Party, and it was passed by unanimous vote.

On [redacted] advised SA CARL W. DETMERE that on 3/17/52, a meeting sponsored by the Progressive Party of the District of Columbia was held at Inspiration House. WILLIAM REUBEN, of the National Committee to Secure Justice in the Rosenberg Case, spoke on the trial and conviction of ETHEL and JULIUS ROSENBERG, commenting on their unfair trial and the use of "stool pigeons." After REUBEN's speech a collection was taken to aid in the fight for the ROSENBERGS and a paper was passed in the audience for signatures of persons willing to work with the committee. The informant estimated that a large number of signatures were so obtained. [redacted]

[redacted] The informant learned that the committee planned to make contact in the Negro and Jewish communities of the city to solicit funds for the Rosenberg Case.

[redacted] advised SA EDWARD PHILIP BROWN that informant had attended a meeting of the Washington Committee to Secure Justice in the Rosenberg Case on 5/4/52, at Odd Fellows Temple, 9th and "F" Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. This informant estimated that approximately 150 people attended this meeting. The informant recognized the following persons in attendance:

FBI - NEW YORK

At this meeting WILLIAM REUBEN spoke on the Rosenberg Case. He said that in September, 1949, President TRUMAN announced that Soviet Russia had exploded an A-Bomb, and immediately following that statement everyone started clamoring that there were spies in the United States and that they should be detected. "Confessions" were first attained from FUCHS and HARRY GOLD, and the American public clamored for more.

The next developments are not to clear; however, a man by the name of DAVID GREENGLASS was arrested by the FBI and grilled for twelve hours during which time he "confessed" and implicated his brother-in-law, JULIUS ROSENBERG, as heading an immense superconspiracy espionage ring here in the United States. At the conclusion of the twelve-hour questioning period, during which time GREENGLASS was held without charge, the FBI suggested that he obtain a lawyer. To show how ridiculous it was, REUBEN said that GREENGLASS had attended only one year of high school. During that year he took eight subjects and failed all. REUBEN said that in 1949, while GREENGLASS was on furlough from Los Alamos, GREENGLASS reportedly drew diagrams for JULIUS ROSENBERG entirely from memory, as well as twelve pages of technical information, including complicated and involved formulas. This, according to REUBEN, was from a person who had had only one year of high school, which he failed.

ARTHUR STEIN, as chairman of this meeting, took the floor after REUBEN's talk and read the Amicus Brief which called for a new and fair retrial. ELEANOR BELSER moved for its adoption by the Washington Progressive Party, and it was passed by unanimous vote.

On [redacted] advised SA CARL W. DE TEMPLE that on 3/17/52, a meeting sponsored by the Progressive Party of the District of Columbia was held at Inspiration House. WILLIAM REUBEN, of the National Committee to Secure Justice in the Rosenberg Case, spoke on the trial and conviction of ETHEL and JULIUS ROSENBERG, commenting on their unfair trial and the use of "stool pigeons." After REUBEN's speech a collection was taken to aid in the fight for the ROSENBERGS and a paper was passed in the audience for signatures of persons willing to work with the committee. The informant estimated that a large number of signatures were so obtained. [redacted] b7D

A discussion was had concerning the proposed picket line to be held at the White House in an effort to cause the President to take some action in favor of the ROSENBERGS. The National Office in New York, desired that this vigil should commence on 12/24/52, and to continue until such action was taken by the President or until the ROSENBERGS were executed. The vigil was planned to continue twenty-four hours per day. It was not the desire of the National Office to have a large number of people in the picket line, but it was their desire that at least twenty persons be in the line at all times. It was announced at this meeting that individuals would come from everywhere to take part in the picket line. Some of the Washington members agreed with the National Office that the picket line should begin on Christmas Eve, while others disagreed and felt that it should not be started until after Christmas. An effort was to be made to obtain office space in Washington for the committee, and a hotel suite was preferred. This office space was to be obtained by 12/15/52, and the expenses were no object. At least one individual was to be present in the office twenty-four hours a day, and it was decided that MARTHA HALKIN would be there each day and she would be relieved by other committee members who would volunteer their time.
